

Faroe Research on Health and Environment –
Pál Weihe's 70th Birthday Symposium
Friday, 30 August 2019

- 14:00-
14:05 Sigurð í Jákupsstovu, rector of University of Faroe Islands (UFI): Welcome
- 14:05-
14:20 Philippe Grandjean, professor, University of Southern Denmark (SDU), Harvard University: Faroe research in environmental medicine in an international perspective.
- 14:20-
14:35 Tina Kold Jensen, professor, SDU, Rigshospitalet (RH): Research in birth cohorts
- 14:35-
14:50 Esben Budtz-Jørgensen, associate professor, Københavns Universitet (KU): Statistical advantages with birth cohorts
- 14:50-
15:05 Flemming Nielsen, associate professor, SDU: New contaminants and new analytical methods.
- 15:05-
15:15 Fróði Debes, psychologist, Department of Occupational Medicine and Public Health (DfAA): Predictors of cognitive abilities and the effect of prenatal exposure to environmental contaminants in the fifth Faroe birth cohort at age 9 years
- 15:15-
15:25 Maria Skaalum Petersen, associate professor, DfAA, UFI: Cohort research among the elderly in the Faroes
- 15:25-
15:40 Elsie M. Sunderland, professor, Harvard University: Faroe keys to research on ocean health
- 15:40-
15:55 Carsten Heilmann, professor, KU, RH: The immune system as indicator of environmental exposure.
- 15:55-
16:05 Magni Mohr, professor, UFI, SDU: Exercise physiology research on the Faroe Islands
- 16:05-
16:10 Pál Weihe, professor, DfAA: Lessons and visions
- 16:10-
16:10 Reception